

about the battery conservancy

In 1994 The Battery Conservancy was created to rebuild and revitalize The Battery, the 25-acre public park at the tip of Manhattan, and its major landmark, Castle Clinton National Monument. The Conservancy spearheads this dramatic transformation in partnership with City, State and Federal governments and is funded by private individuals, corporations and foundations. 100% of The Battery Conservancy's annual budget is generated by gifts from the private sector.
